HANDWRITING IS INDEX OF PERSONALITY

Mr. Lomax Reads Paper on Handwriting and Crime

EXPERT IN CITY

Microscope and Photographic Camera Used in Detecting Fraudulency

M. J. J. Lomax who has been connected with the Montreal Courts for the past thirty years in the capacity of Court stenographer and who holds the reputation of being the foremost handwriting expert in the city, read last evening at Strathcona Hall a very able and scholarly paper on "Handwriting and Crime." The address indicated a wide and extensive knowledge of the subject as well as devotion and interest for same.

The art of writing just as the art of speaking is a habit and just as one varies so does the other. Writing has assumed a great deal of importance in all fields of enterprise particularly in connection with courts and criminals. Mr. Lomax went on to say that writing is an indication both of character and mind of an individual and when particular attention is given to it, a certain amount of genuineness makes itself prominent. Some people speak eloquently but where a certain amount of concentration is placed upon the movement of the lips and the mechanical execution of the delivery, we find that the speech becomes badly hampered. This in short is the sum and substance of fraudulent handwriting.

Free natural writing, Mr. Lomax continued, is due to unconscious movements which come from a centre in the brain and stimulate the muscles into activity. It is a fixed and unconscious habit according to Disraeli, handwriting is as much a part of the personality as the face is and in reality should hold a higher place in the constitution of character, than any other part of the physiognomy. It becomes clear then that any effort to disguise writing interferes with freedom and speed. And so we have a means of detection between the conscious and unconscious writing.

There are always two problems in the identification of any piece of writing and they are the determination of extent and resemblance and (Continued on page 2)

SOCIETE ENDS SEASON WITH SHORT PLAYS

R. V. C. French Society Holds Successful Meeting

MR. STROWSKI

Mirth-Provoking Performances Given by Different Years

Yesterday afternoon the R. V. C. Common Room was the scene of a large and enthusiastic gathering to witness the last session of the Societe Francaise, for this session, which took the form of a dramatic entertainment.

The Society were privileged in having many guests present to enjoy their programme with them, the most illustrious of these certainly being M. Fortunat Strowski, Docteur-es-Lettres, who is professor of French literature at the University of Paris. Professor duRoi, Miss Hurlbatt and many other guests were also present.

After the reading of the minutes of the last meeting, which was that held in union with the Cercle Francais, Miss Murray, president of the Undergraduate Society moved that the new constitution of this Society, to be drawn up by the present executive, remain practically the same as the old one, except that in place of the old membership clause, a new one should be inserted stating that the membership of the Society was open to all women students at McGill. This motion was carried, by the meeting.

The afternoon's entertainment began with a short but ingenious play, in which the names of the characters and the dialogue itself were entirely composed of letters of the alphabet. Miss Servier in the costume of a villainous Turk, played the part of "Prologue" and very clearly and vividly explained the play and called on the several actresses to make their appearance. After each character had appeared singly before the audience, the curtain was drawn and the first of the three tableaux which followed was presented. Here the Sultan, P.Q., was brutally trying to impose his love on the beautiful princess I.J.K.

The second tableau is a love scene between the princess I.J.K. and her courageous lover NO, in which the princess embraced her lover and cries out "L.M. NO." The third tableau shows the return of the Sultan who with the aid of the guards surrounds the princess.

Second year then put on three short plays, the first of which was a dialogue between a book-worm old Professor and his wife, the parts being taken by Miss Ramsay and Miss Hart. The scene opens with Miss Hart enquiring of her husband if he remembered to post her letter that morning. The old fellow says he did, and on being suspiciously eyed by his better half, he proceeds to carefully explain the particular post box in which he placed it, and even remembers noticing a special little (Continued on page 2)

KEEN LOSS SUFFERED BY POLO TEAM

Red and White Lose Coach Vernot

OFFICERS ELECTED

Junior Team to Enter City League

Mr. Vernot, who for many years has been the coach of the McGill Swimming team has resigned from that position according to an announcement made at a meeting of the Swimming Club held in the Union yesterday.

Up to the time of going to press early this morning, the "Daily" was unable to secure any explanation of the unexpected resignation of the coach. Mr. Vernot has been in the services of McGill for many years, and his resignation comes quite unexpectedly. The coach was hard at work during the session just past and gave no indication of his intention to relinquish duties as mentor to the Red and White mermen.

The resignation was accepted with the greatest regret by the Swimming Club. "Mr. Vernot has been invaluable to the swimmers and poloists and their successes have been largely due to his untiring and unceasing efforts. He has always given up a great deal of his time to help them and the whole club feels very deeply the loss they are suffering as a result of his withdrawal from the service of McGill." This statement was made last night by a prominent member of the Swimming Club executive, who had not, however, any reason to suggest for Mr. Vernot's retirement.

Among other things discussed at the meeting was the question of entering a polo team in the city league. It was decided after considerable debate in which the pros and cons were talked over at length, that a senior team should not be entered in this league. A junior squad will be allowed entry, was determined.

When the question of the proposed visits to United States Colleges was taken up, the consensus of opinion was in favour of the American teams visiting McGill.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

Hon. President, Dr. Chas. Sullivan; President, C. M. Anson, Manager, Hal Williams; Asst. Manager, J. W. Jardine.

M. Strowski Delivers Interesting Lecture to Alliance Francaise

At a meeting of L'Alliance Francaise held in the ballroom of the Iltz Carlton hotel last night the French speaking literature loving public of Montreal had a rare treat in listening to a lecture by Monsieur Fortunat Joseph Strowski of l'Universite de Paris.

Judge Surveur of the McGill Law Faculty acted as chairman of the meeting. In the absence of Judge Desautels, the president, and introduced the speaker of the evening. He stated that M. Strowski had been connected with the Universite de Bordeaux and later with the Universite de Paris, he had been sent by the French Government on educational and other matters to various foreign countries and is at present at Columbia University, New York in the capacity of exchange professor. M. Strowski is also well known as a writer on French literary subjects of historical interest. Before calling upon the speaker, the chairman announced to the assembly the fact that the new honorary president of the society, M. Baron de Vitrolles, French Consul General was present and would say a few words. M. de Vitrolles then expressed his appreciation of the honour bestowed on him in his appointment to this office.

The subject on which M. Strowski lectured was "Style in Literature since the War" and during the course of his talk showed himself to be a master of his subject. In commencing his address, the speaker pointed out that he noticed a great similarity between French Canadians and those of France, in fact, he had many French Canadian friends in Paris and therefore felt much at home before his audience. As for modern literature he thinks it better to lecture on it because everyone is interested in those books which are being read at the (Continued on page 2)

DOCTOR ELIOT OF HARVARD.

Dr. Charles W. Eliot, President Emeritus of Harvard University, was ninety years old yesterday. America paid tribute to this venerable nonagenarian, old in years, but young in spirit, who was the outstanding figure in the educational advance of his generation in the new world, and whose record of accomplishments and length of years are seldom surpassed.

Born in Boston, in 1834, bred in a New England home, where high idealism and culture were prevailing factors, Eliot entered Harvard at fifteen years of age, and graduated four years later with a class which subsequently became famous in intellectual pursuits. From 1854-58 he studied chemistry, at the same time tutoring in mathematics. For the following five years he served as assistant professor of mathematics and chemistry. In 1863 he went to Europe to study new fields in his favourite subjects. Returning two years later he became professor of chemistry in what is now known as the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Not without hesitation on the part of the governors was Eliot elected President of Harvard in 1869, for he was a disciple of a new type of higher education, more liberal, broader in application, and widely diverging from the accepted system of that time. During his forty years' service as President of Harvard he was largely instrumental in bringing about whatever perfection the American system of university education may have to-day. On his retirement in 1909 as head of that great institution, he was immediately made president emeritus, a post which is still held and dignified by him.

In this personality are some dominant forces which, to a greater or lesser degree, are part of the lives of all great men; unswerving love for the truth together with two qualities—care for detail and loyalty to principles; a strong desire to minister to the welfare not only of his immediate relatives and associates, but of humanity in general; firm belief in the principle of liberty and a constant stand for the side of patriotism; boldness tempered with reason, and patience inexhaustible at all times. Speaking of Dr. Eliot, H. S. Pritchett, President of the Carnegie Foundation, said, "Those who have known him best in educational relations, value as one of his greatest qualities the ability to differ with the opinions of his colleagues without a trace of personal feeling; it is a rare quality even in great men."

To the efforts of President Eliot is largely due the elective system of studies practised in universities to-day. He contended that a college student has the right to freedom in choosing subjects, which are best suited to individual tastes and interests.

Dr. Eliot has spent his years in the best interests of humanity, of culture, and for the building of a better civilization. At ninety he still retains a certain freshness, vigour, and optimistic spirit, probably because he has achieved the "durable satisfactions of life."

CONDENSED COMMENT.

The Dalhousie debaters came, spoke and conquered, and we extend to the men from Down East our hearty congratulations on the successful outcome of their first venture outside of the Maritime Provinces. But we also thank those who ably represented the Red and White, for it is generally granted that last night's debate was one of the best on the records of the present year. The speeches were all of high quality, and, in contrast to some former occasions, the audience was comparatively large and very enthusiastic. The debating season at McGill has come to a conclusion, but it can be safely said that though it has not been a notable one from the standpoint of victories, it was the most favourable experienced in recent years.

It was with a sense of deep regret that we heard of the resignation of Mr. Vernot, who for many years has been the honorary coach of the McGill swimming team and water polo squad. It would be hard to estimate the value of the work done by Mr. Vernot, for he has been energetic, faithful and has produced excellent results with the material he has had at hand. To him, more than to any other individual, must be given the credit for placing McGill in such an enviable position in the ranks of Canadian swimming clubs.

present time rather than something old, out of date and scarcely ever read at the present time.

Better a live shepherd than a dead king. Styles in literature are continually changing and writers are always looking ahead for new styles such as do milliners look ahead for new hat styles.

An account was then given of the way in which prizes for books are awarded but the speaker stated that that which determines the fashion is public opinion. Coarse language due to the effect of the war is much in evidence, also another thing noticeable in modern literature is a tendency to deal to some extent with Bolshevism, although not as dangerous as it would appear the speaker knew from experience that writers wish only to warn us of the dangers which menace humanity.

As for the poetry, it is at the present time said Mr. Strowski, quite as "A la Mode" as is prose; it was however considered very trivial when he was young but is now popular with everyone. Some of the popular present day poets are Henri Jacques and Jean Beque. In closing Mr. Strowski stated that in his opinion the French were the only nation who have not been influenced by the United States and considered that the French Canadians are following the same example.

Genius no longer wears long hair. It is the bald-headed man who comes out on top.

determination and extent of variation. When both elements are solved the problem becomes clear and justice is done where justice is due.

More money has been lost in the last few years by handwriting than money lost by theft. It has been known where a six dollar draft was changed into a fourteen thousand dollar draft and cashed. The greatest piece of fraudulent strategy was executed by Charles Becker and his associates a few years ago. It was done with a great deal of meticulous care and attention. A check of twelve thousand dollars was changed to twenty two thousand and even the best of experts were baffled in detecting the alteration. Patches of paper resembling the sensitive paper of the check, acid, printing machines were all resorted to in the manipulation of the change. The criminals were caught however in the long run but only after a careful search.

Graphology, Mr. Lomax said, has not become perfected but it is a science today. There have been very many cases of resemblance between the handwriting and judgment of character thereupon. No doubt that handwriting does indicate and characterize individuals and differentiates one from the other. It is perhaps more logical to believe that general characteristics can be detected rather than particular ones in the reading of ones handwriting. However there are graphologists that have done some masterly work and it remains for the future to perfect the study.

Just as writing is a means of identification so of late is typewriting. Criminals have been under the impression that a typing machine is a medium of protection. On the contrary it has led to their downfall more so than writing by hand. There are scores of different types of machines and each one has its own type, spacing, rebounds etc. Every four years a new machine is put out which varies a good deal with the original

LAST OPPORTUNITY TO GET THE ANNUAL

At six o'clock this evening all lists for the McGill Annual will close. It is therefore urged that those students who desire additional copies or those who have heretofore not been canvassed will not lose this opportunity of affixing their signatures to the supplementary lists.

The names have already been sent to the printers who are now waiting for the new lists which close tonight at six. Needless to say that this year's annual is an excellent one. Do not lose your last chance. Subscribe before this evening.

The Mills College Forum has received a brilliant idea from Mr. Bok's activities according to the "New Student," an intercollegiate paper published by the National Student Forum. This publication states that the idea is to offer a $10 book order to the student who submits the best substitute for the freshman-sophomore banner rush. This year's Forum is a traditional spring "play fest" of the two classes, but the Forum is anxious to promote the cause of peace, hence the "Book Peace Prize."

one which was the model for the latter one. Here again criminals have been badly backed.

A certain amount of advice was given by Mr. Lomax in conjunction with signatures and writing of important documents. Names should always be spelled out in full and do not use broad pens. A simple flourish at the end of a name or word is feasible but should not obscure any letter. There should be no mending or erasing.

Fraudulency has become nigh impossible now with the introduction of the microscope, photographic camera and an army of trained experts coming into the fold.

The meeting was thrown open for discussion upon the completion of the address. Prof. Talte pointed out that some work has been done on blood pressure in association with crime. A very interesting phase of criminology.

At the close of the meeting, those who attended were given the opportunity to look into some of the real examples of forgery and fraudulency. Mr. Lomax very gladly brought with him collections of forged documents which had occupied the minds and judgment of many a juror, judge or referee.

WORK OF UNDERGRADS. SPOKEN OF IN ANNUAL REPORT OF PRINCIPAL

(Concluded.)

A summary of the cosmopolitan enrolment of students shows how important the progress of McGill and its future development is to the life of Canada. The following table shows the enrolment of Quebec students compared with that of outsiders:—

Arts and Commerce.
Quebec.	Other.	Session.
453	188	1919-20
614	268	1922-23
Applied Science.
393	250	1919-20
541	249	1922-23
Medicine.
507	480	1919-20
289	475	1922-23

These figures show the considerable increase in the proportion which the number coming from outside of Quebec bears to those coming from that province.

THE UNDERGRADUATE

"However important may be its function in the work of research, the principal aim of the University must always be to do its part in the making of men who will be leaders in the community. In order to further this aim of preparing her undergraduates for their part in life, the University has always encouraged the formation of Societies devoted to subjects akin to those being taken up in laboratories or studies.

Of all these societies, perhaps the Literary and Debating Society and the McGill Daily are the most general in their interest. The former holds debate and Mock Parliaments which do great work in encouraging clear thinking and unembarrassed speaking. The Daily does valuable work in maintaining the esprit de corps of the University, bringing the doings of one society into close connection with another, and encouraging the prominent students by recognition.

The adoption of compulsory Physical Education is proving a great innovation, and in order that the number taking compulsory gym may be reduced to a minimum, as many minor sports as possible are being introduced. Great care must be taken lest these sports are drawn out of the category of true amateurism, and this the University is determined to accomplish.

Looking Towards the Future

The ideals at which McGill as a true University is aiming at, are threefold:—First to do its full share in raising the general status of intelligence and culture in Canada and train men to be citizens of the highest type; second to encourage and stimulate research; third, where teaching is directed towards the practice of a profession to provide a broad, a general basis without over specialization and to aim at a very high standard of excellence.

With regard to the first aim, McGill has a great responsibility, situated as it is, at the gateway of Canada, and influencing students from all lands. Much has been said above concerning research work, the second aim. In regard to the third aim, there has been some tendency to overspecialize, and it is believed that a man with a more general education is far more fitted to hold than a man who concentrates on one subject.

Faculty of Medicine

The Medical Faculty of McGill serves, in the first place as a school for practitioners. In the pre-clinical work, arrangements are excellent here. The proximity of the Royal Victoria

Hospital to medical laboratories provides exceptional opportunities for future practitioners. The hospitals with which McGill is connected are all of unquestioned standing. Yet the faculty is under a great disadvantage in having poor facilities for research work in Tuberculosis and Psychiatry, also, in Hygiene and Preventive work, and the future aims of this faculty will be to increase greatly facilities for these studies. Great stress is laid on the advisability of procuring professors who can devote a reasonable amount of time to research work, the second aim. In Faculty of Applied Science

The fact that engineering is now occupying a great place in Canada owing to pioneer work being carried on. This work demands generally educated men rather than specialists, and yet an engineer must take care not to degenerate into a mechanic. It is therefore necessary that a very high standard be lived up to, and this great responsibility falls in no small measure upon McGill.

Faculty of Arts

The faculty of Arts has been faced with a grave drawback—namely insufficient preparation given to students prior to entering McGill. The University is not the place for beginners in German or Greek, but poor facilities for preparation make the institution of these classes necessary. The standard in Mathematics is also low for the same reason. The number of failures in January show the inadequate preparation. In addition to this, the first two years of Arts are hopelessly overcrowded owing to the fact that the faculties of Medicine, Dentistry and Law require two years in Arts prior to taking up the special course. But the Arts course is now far more general and whereas before every graduate took up a professional career, now a great proportion go into business, and an Arts course is considered necessary for more general parts of life.

Faculty of Law

The faculty of Law is alone among the faculties that it is unable to say that even in theory its graduates obtain all the instruction necessary for the practice of their profession. This is the great difficulty with all University Law Schools. There is little chance to come under the instruction of trained practitioners, whereas in the London Bar, facilities for this can be provided.

So long as the present attitude of the various Provincial Bar Associations exists, there does not seem any reason to think that many students will come to McGill with a view to practicing law in other places. But even the Quebec student seeks training in common law subjects, so that even if the LL.B. course was abolished, optional courses should be provided.

In conclusion, Sir Arthur Currie writes these words of encouragement: "It is not possible to look over all the ground which we must cover without realizing to the fullest extent the magnitude of our task. It is indeed a great one. Sometimes it seems so great that the financial difficulties bulk very largely, yet after all, McGill has found in the past that whenever a need arose, and whenever she tried to fill the need, means have been forthcoming to enable her to do so, and it is with the confidence borne of this experience that we now face the future."

MCGILL'S ATHLETIC RECORD

With more than a dozen athletic activities at college recognized at present by the Department of Physical Education and the Athletic Board of Control, it is somewhat of a surprise to know that most of these sports are of comparatively recent inauguration. Tugby dates back to 1898 and track to 1899 as intercollegiate competitions, hockey beginning in the winter of 1902-03 and basketball two years later. All these may be classed as long established games. The newer competitions were born in the season of 1909-1910 when five minor sports were placed on an intercollegiate standing, namely, tennis, swimming, water polo, the harrier run, and the boxing, wrestling and fencing matches. The very latest activities in which Varsity and McGill compete are the gymnasium exhibition, held first in 1921, and golf matches held last fall.

Golf

For some time past the annual Professors vs. Students golf matches, held on the morning of the University Sports Day, have been awaited with keenest anticipation by the undergraduate golf enthusiasts. Last fall Toronto University was approached with a view to determining the possibility of establishing golf as an intercollegiate competition. Undergraduate both there and here were so enthusiastic over this that plans were consummated and the first series of matches was held in Toronto. McGill's team was returned victorious. The play was good and the entire trip was a forerunner of what is expected to be a series of splendid matches still more closely drawing together the universities competing.

Gymnasium

Toronto and McGill have split even on the four matches to date. Toronto won the first in 1921, and that held two weeks ago, while McGill won the 1922 and 1923 competitions. This somewhat due to the abolition of the set of exercises required formerly. Now the entire display is purely voluntary, each man going through those exercises in which he is most proficient. Of course the teams must still use all the apparatus specified, but the manner of performance is left a matter of personal judgment. The exhibitions are well worth watching as some of the neatest and prettiest gymnasium work possible is indulged in by the competitors who are in splendid condition physically. The results follow:

1921—Toronto.
1922—McGill.
1923—McGill.
1924—Toronto.

SOCIETY ENDS SEASON WITH SHORT PLAYS

corner torn on the envelope. After all this careful explanation his lady quietly tells him that she gave him no letter to post.

The second dialogue was one between a very tired and sick young man, and the doctor. After examining his patient's tongue and feeling his pulse the doctor tells him that what he needs is a great deal of exercise in the open air. The poor patient makes several attempts to interrupt the doctor and tell him of his profession, but without success, when he finally succeeds in finishing his sentence, the audience, as well as the doctor, are surprised to learn that he is a "postman."

The third act put on by the sophomores was a tableau of sunflowers in a garden. The story was read by Mlle. Touren and during the presentation, appropriate music was softly rendered by Miss Frey.

The last item on the programme was a most entertaining one—a play entitled "Rosalie," put on by the 3rd and 4th years. There were but three characters: Miss K. Perrin, the husband, Miss S. Carl, the wife, and Miss E. Mussy-Bayly, the maid, "Rosalie." All the played their parts very well, but Miss Mussy-Bayly adapted herself especially well to her role of the slovenly and awkward maid. The plot hinges on the fact that the maid has really the ruling hand in the house, for she refuses to open the door for the expected guest, and remains firm in her refusal until she has been given all she desires. She then reluctantly decides to answer the peeling door bell, only to bring back to the now desperate master and mistress the news, that it was someone who had mistaken the door.

After this most entertaining afternoon, tea was served and the meeting broke up, not to meet together again until the final meetings of the season, which will be held in about three weeks' time, to elect the executive for next year.

The Daily is not responsible for sentiments of letters published in the correspondence columns. Signed communications from graduates, undergraduates, and members of the faculty will be placed in print if they are not of too great length.

Correspondents are requested to observe the unwritten law of the newspaper office—that they write upon ONE SIDE OF THE PAPER ONLY.

No communication will be admitted in this column without the name of the writer being attached, not necessarily for PUBLICATION.

McGill Daily.

The Editor.

Dear Sir:—There appears elsewhere in your columns a letter from our Chancellor addressed to me as part of the executive of the Medical Society, but which I think applies to more than just Medicine, referring, as it does, to the Open Meeting of that Society.

Coming from one Mr. Beatty's calibre, the suggestion it puts forth is well worth noting. Are we not apt to be too diffident about securing speakers of a high order and thereby foregoing inestimable opportunities of becoming acquainted with personalities every man would do well to study. I am sure no one in last Monday evening's audience could have listened to that address, brief and clear-cut, yet full of thought, without receiving a wonderful stimulus and inspiration for his own particular line of work.

Now when Mr. Beatty not only intimates his own willingness to confer a similar favour next year, but vouches for the other members of the Board of Governors, in aiding to promote this contact with the students and furthermore express that he is kind enough to term "positive enjoyment" in doing so, he has indeed gone a great deal more than half way. I should like to urge the incoming executives of the larger societies to bear this in mind when preparing their next year's program.

That the students are desirous of hearing such addresses, has received ample proof in our own Society this year, for when one thinks of Medical students turning out in numbers of two and three hundred strong there seems little room left for doubt.

Thanking you for your valuable space, I am, Sir,

Yours very truly,

FRANK BEMONS.

Dear Sir:—For future occurrences where amendments of such importance as the increased universal fee is at issue I would like to propose that the student's decision be reached by vote by ballot for this reason: that the number of men who passed final judgment at the last Society meeting were approximately about six hundred, or roughly about thirty-five per cent of the male registration; that this small number was solely due to the limited capacity of the Union hall-room, and was amply evidenced by the fact that the hall was filled practically to the doors and that well over a hundred more students came to the meeting but did not remain on account of the lack of space. Against this thirty-five per cent strong meeting it is noted that roughly over double this number voted at the recent elections. And although the action of a six hundred strong meeting may be decidedly set on a matter, the result may be the opposite when it is reached by ballot by a considerably larger number of students.

There was a proposal asking for a ballot put forward by a student at the meeting, but this suggestion was passed over in the discussion.

Yours truly,

A. V. Forrester.

Med. '24.

THE MASTER'S MESSAGE

A general who had returned home from India visited a well-known public school, where he called on the house-master of a young Indian prince, the son of a Rajah.

The General stated that before leaving India he had promised the Rajah to deliver a message to the boy's tutor. It was that the Rajah desired that his son should receive no exceptional treatment in the school on account of his exalted birth.

The house-master hastened to reassure the General.

"Pray tell the Rajah," he said "that there is no need to be alarmed. In this school his son answers to the name of 'Nigger,' and among his intimates he is commonly called 'Coal-Scuttle!'"

Prof.—(to student entering ten minutes late)—When were you born?

Student—April the second.

Prof.—Late again.

PROSPECTS GOOD FOR R.V.C. SKIT

Nature of Act is Now Revealed

At a practice of the R. V. C. skit which was held last evening in the R.V.C. Gymnasium, more favorable indications as to the success of the act were shown than have appeared at any previous rehearsals. The McGill Orchestra was present, and contributed a great deal to the success of the practice.

A very unfortunate incident has occurred in the form of another blow dealt by the Hun to the R. V. C. cast. Miss Jeanne Robins, the R. V. C. producer, has been afflicted with German measles, and will be unable to participate in Theatre Night. In spite of this serious handicap to their work the members of the cast are carrying on to the best of their ability. Miss Wain, of the Physical Education staff, very kindly assisted with last night's practice.

The proceedings of the R. V. C. actresses have been more or less kept in the dark so far, but it is felt that "Now it can be told."

The skit consists mainly of dancing and the costumes will be varied and pretty. The solitary "man" of the cast dances in turn with many types of girls from the Cave woman up to the McGill girl of 1934, performing with each one steps characteristic of the period she represents. The Egyptian woman who has figured so prominently in recent literature and whose manner of attire is so fashionable will appear, as will also the Grecian maiden, the Medieval, the Elizabethan and the Puritan types. The beautiful old-fashioned minuet, without which no series of dances seems quite complete will of course figure in the act. The Gibson girl, the prim Victorian, Kate Greenaway, and the frivolous Flapper will all appear before the McGill girl finally takes the stage.

The members of the cast are optimistic in regard to their part in Theatre Night as a result of last night's practice. A practice of the final chorus will be held at 1.30 today, in the Common Room.

To understand everything would be to pardon everything—George Eliot.

HOSPITAL INTERNES BATTLE IN HOCKEY

R. V. H. Wins the City Hospital Championship

Thursday night at the Victoria rink the hockey team composed of internes of the Royal Victoria Hospital defeated a like aggregation from the Montreal General Hospital by a score of 5-2. This was the second of a two game series to determine the hospital championship of the city, and as the R. V. H. were also successful in winning the first game to the tune of 6-1 to one, the cup now in possession of M. G. H. passes to the Pine Avenue team.

The game was fast and interesting from the start and the score was indicative of the relative merits of the two teams. Dr. Scriver for the Vics. was as solid as the Rock of Gibraltar in goal, and turned aside many a well directed shot. Dudley Ross playing under the same colors, scored four of the five goals for the winners; Whitey although just recently seriously ill put up a pretty exhibition, and featured in the scoring column. Crew-son with his poke check starred throughout the second game as he had done in the first.

For the General Parlow, Silver and Shaughnessy were most effective, the last named scoring the first goal over the prostate form of Scriver. The line-up follows:—

R. V. H.	M. G. H.
Gaol.
Scriver . . . . .	Hawthorne
	Defence.
Ackman . . . . .	Fiamikon

DALHOUSIE DEBATERS PROVE SOCIAL REMEDIES EXIST FOR PRESENT INDUSTRIAL UNREST

Judges' Decision Unanimous — Popular Vote Eighty-six to Ten for Halifax Men — Last Event on Programme of the Lit. for Session — Large Audience Crowds Lounge Room — Dr. Leacock in Chair — Canon Almond, Mr. Gibbon and Mr. Hackett were Judges.

The activities of the Literary and Debating Society closed for the session when the McGill debating team was defeated by representatives of Dalhousie University in the Union last night. Supporting the resolution, "That There are Social Remedies for the Present Industrial Unrest," Donald McInnis, Leonard Fraser, and W. Sidney Gilchrist received eighty-six votes out of ninety-six cast by the audience as well as the unanimous decision of the judges.

The debate resolved itself into an argument on the meaning of the resolution, the views of the opposing teams being greatly opposed. It was held by the affirmative, that social remedy did not imply a cure for all existing unrest. By social remedy, they meant any group or state action that tended to alleviate this unrest. McGill held that to prove their case, the Nova Scotians must show that social remedies would do away with all unrest that exists at present.

Opening for the visitors, Fraser, after explaining the resolution, stated that unrest is due to three main causes. Low wages, the fear of unemployment, and the problem of unemployment are the three great factors contributing to industrial unrest. The greatest of these is low wages.

As a remedy for the first of these, he suggested minimum wage laws. A commission in 1919, had shown that in the United States there was required an increase in wages from 22 to 59 per cent in many industries. In certain states a minimum wage law has already been adopted. Australia, fourteen of the United States and the provinces of Quebec, Ontario and Saskatchewan were cited as examples. Australia being stressed and described.

Unemployment Insurance
Unemployment insurance was cited as a possible remedy for the second cause of unrest postulated by the speaker. The responsibility for this should be borne by the industry, he claimed. Some believed that the responsibility should be divided, even this would remedy the bad state of conditions that exist at present.

The problem of unemployment arises from the fluctuations in business. The state should curtail work in busy periods, slipping it in at times of unemployment. Fraser also desired to see a more complete control of the labour market by the state.

Taking up the argument for the negative, Portal sought to prove that there is a great difference between remedy and mitigation. He differed with the interpretation given the resolution by the affirmative, pointing out that to prove their case it was necessary that they should show that industrial unrest could be done away with entirely by social remedies.

He reviewed social conditions of one hundred years ago, claiming that no unrest existed at that time. It was due to the stirring of the conscience of society that reforms were made. The introduction of education contributed greatly to the growth of this unrest according to Portal. Education was followed by trades unions. These gave the workmen some say in the businesses in which they were employed; having got some say, they wished to run the "whole show."

It is ambition that makes people restless. The more people are educated, the greater grows their ambition. The greater their ambition, the more unrest becomes prominent, claimed the leader of the negative. The most pampered class of workmen are the most dissatisfied, he stated. He cited the example of the miners in England.

Industrial Unrest
The greatest industrial unrest is at present to be found in the United States where industry is taken care of by legislation to the greatest extent. Concluding, Portal emphasized the fact that whereas social reform may act as a temporary palliative, it could not possibly effect a permanent cure.

CONGOS INFLECTED DECISIVE DEFEAT

Win Inter-Theological Basketball by Wide Margin

Two old rivals fought it out again Wednesday night when the Congos and Presbyterians met in the play-off game which ended the intercollegiate Theological Basketball Series. Both teams anticipated a good struggle and were in good practice.

From the beginning, the Congos had the better of the game in team work, and the score is a pretty good indication of the play. Clean playing was exhibited throughout, and few personal fouls were made. Though every man on the side of the winners showed his best, Moore and Hutton were right there with the usual vim. Duckworth and Hutton did good work for the Presbyterians. The Congregationists had a high lead off in the first period and in the second stage with many baskets in quick succession made a final score of 31 against 11 on the P.C. side. The lineup was as follows:

Congos.	Presbyterians.
L. Thompson	T. Hutton
R. Smith	H. McPhail
H. Bronson	J. Lindsay
D. Moore	H. Lybion
E. Eddy	J. Duckworth
Subs
C. Whitmore	F. Inula
L. Somerville	J. Stewart

BRIGHT PROSPECTS FOR COMING YEAR

Gymnasium Club Hold Meeting at Union

The final meeting of the gymnasium club was held at five o'clock last night at the Union, at which the programme for the coming year was discussed.

This club like all others, has had to climb gradually, and though they were greatly disappointed in not procuring this year's championship, Coach Finlay pointed out how they had lost, but by twenty-six points out of seven thousand, and entreated them not to be discouraged, as the prospects for the coming year looked very promising. Mr. Finlay is endeavouring to increase the gymnasium competition by persuading other athletic associations, such as the M.A.A.A., and Y.M.C.A. to become interested.

The discussion of the meeting, however, was principally centred upon the question of finance. The lack of funds as expressed by Mr. Mackey, former Secretary-Treasurer, is a great drawback to the club, and it was thus decided that a fee would be charged to all members at the beginning of the next season in order to cover surplus expenses.

As some of the members sincerely hope to graduate next year, and fear that they will not have time to fulfill the duties of an officer, an election took place, which rendered Dr. Lamb an president, Mackey as captain, and Greenman as secretary-treasurer.

At the conclusion of the meeting Mackey, speaking on behalf of the club, expressed his appreciation for the invaluable services and kind attention rendered by Mr. Finlay, as well as Mr. Weary, and Mr. Holland, who were both graduates of McGill.

SIX MCGILL MEN SURVIVE SEMI-FINAL

Good Showing in Provincial Championships

As a result of the Provincial Wrestling Eliminations at the Y.M.C.A., last night, there are six McGill men in the finals. In the 123 lb. class M. Greenberg of McGill drew a bye and will be in the final against Black of Verdun and Rose of Carleton Place.

In the next class McAvoy and Leland of McGill lost their bouts by default. In the finals of this class will be Adregion of Carleton Place, Southern of Verdun, Curious of National and Doucet of National. The 145 lb. seemed practically all for McGill. Fisher and E. A. McNaughton both won their bouts and will be in the finals as will also Monty Montgomery of Y.M.C.A., a former McGill wrestler.

Adams and Harvey, the two McGill entrants in the 158 lb. class, were both defeated. Harvey who is a new man at wrestling put up a wonderful battle and an overtime period was called. Even in the overtime period Harvey showed up good and although Cowley of Y.M.C.A. was given the decision it must have been practically a toss-up to who won. Those who are left in the finals in this class are, Rivard, Baroulet, Cowley, Y.M.C.A., Stockton, Verdun, and Beauclaire, National.

There were no bouts in the 175 lb. or light heavy, 191 lb. class and no entrants in the Heavyweight division. In the finals, Demitro of McGill will meet McCormick of the Y.M.C.A. for the 175 lb. title and Bimble and Coppie both of McGill will fight it out for the light-heavy championship. As it stands now McGill is represented in four out of the six classes for the finals which is more than any other club and it looks as though she should turn out a winner. There were quite a few McGill supporters at the bouts and there should be more Saturday.

R.V.C. DISPLAY GYMNASTICS AND DANCING

In Convocation Hall To-day and To-morrow

VARIED NUMBERS

Entertainment to be a Sure Remedy for the Blues

All those who are interested in gymnastics and dancing are to be offered a very pleasing entertainment in the R.V.C. Gymnastic Demonstration which is taking place in Convocation Hall this evening and tomorrow evening.

For some years this has been an annual event and has always been enthusiastically supported by the students. This year added interest is being shown in it because of its omission last year owing to the fact that the Women's Intercollegiate Basketball and Hockey Meets were held in Montreal. The Physical Education staff and the R.V.C. Undergraduates have been working hard to prepare a programme which rather unusual and should prove to be particularly attractive. Tickets at the price of 75 cents and $1.10, tax included, may be obtained at the door. Proceeds are to go to the support of the University Settlement and to Women's Intercollegiate Athletics.

A novel item entitled, "A New Daily Dozen," with a cast comprising a large number of students and a great variety of exercises form a breezy informal introduction to the programme. The second number is a very pretty one composed of Indian Club and Wand exercises, performed simultaneously by alternate rows of girls. This is followed by some Formal Gymnastics and some Apparatus work conducted on the plan of three-acting circus. An Inter-year Relay, in which considerable rivalry will be evidenced, terminates the first part of the programme. Everything is to be done in such rapid succession and there will be much a variety, that interest will not wane.

The second part of the programme is composed of eight dances of a very varied character in which costumes of many styles and colours are worn. After the lively Jockey Dance the spectators are carried in thought to Old Madrid where beautiful Spanish ladies in bright gowns and shawls, carrying fans, dance in the approved Spanish manner. This is followed by "Sorentina" and a gay little country dance, after which the scene changes to Russia and then to Greece. Pierrottes and Pierrots attired most appropriately in red and white then dance in a care-free manner. The last dance on the programme is a charming one in which participants are a romantic Piper and sprightly Nymphs. The Grand March and God Save the King terminate a delightful evening's entertainment.

Anyone who is looking for a method to drive dull care away should go to the R.V.C. Gym Demonstration this evening or tomorrow at 8 o'clock. Favourable results are guaranteed to all normal beings.

The following is the programme:

- 1—"A New Daily Dozen," Informal

There's a certain wild abandon
And you feel there is no wrong.
When you settle to an evening

You find you have to do.

First you heap the winds about you
And the seasons as they come;
And then you light your old cob pipe.

Settle down, and play some rhum.

Three weeks.
What did you do?
Jest killed my wife.
An' you-all only got three weeks.
Dat's all. Den day's gwine to hang me.—Exchange.

FINAL DINNER FOR SCIENCE SENIORS

Entire Class will Attend Red and White Review

The Senior Year in Science will attend the Friday evening performance of the Red and White Review next week in a body. The year is perhaps better known as Science '24—though whether for better or for worse is a debatable point. At the theatre night last year the streamers so joyously scattered over the audience—and which so materially added to the thoughtful foresight of this class. At the same time, men from Science '24 were amongst the most active members of that volunteer committee which so ably preserved order, and, by a process of elimination, prevented disorder during the evening. The Committee again will have the whole-hearted support of this year.

As the final rally before more serious business begins, and as the last get-together during this last academic year, the members of the class will dine at the Place Viger Hotel prior to the show at the St. Denis Theatre. This dinner promises to be the best of them all—a fitting climax to four years of endeavour. Representatives of the faculty from each of the five departments will be present as guests of the year. This has been specially requested by the men in the class. The menu will be of that high order which Science '24 has come to expect at such affairs. The Place Viger offers adequate accommodation for the number attending and is in close proximity to the theatre. Men who have not yet obtained their dinner cards may do so at once from Douglas Pollock, Lester McGillis, Kenneth Muir, and John Evans.

ARTS ELECTIONS NEXT WEDNESDAY

Nominations Must be in by 6 P.M. To-morrow

The officers of next year's Arts Undergraduate Society will be elected next Wednesday, March 26. Nominations, which require to be signed by ten students of the faculty, must be left with the secretary or with the Arts Janitor by 6 p.m. to-morrow.

As a result of the amendment which was adopted on the unanimous vote of the members present at yesterday's meeting in Room 5 of the Arts Building, the President and Treasurer are to be chosen from the incoming Senior year, Arts '25, and the Secretary from the incoming Sophomore year, Arts '27.

Up to the present the Treasurer has been a Sophomore and the Secretary a Freshman; but henceforth there will be no representative on the executive from the first year. This change has been adopted by most of the other undergraduate societies at the university and its adoption by the Arts men has long been practically assured although no definite move had been made until this year. At the last regular meeting of the Arts Society, a motion of the proposed amendment to the constitution was read, and when it was put forward yesterday there was no dissenting vote.

WILL EXPLAIN 'PHONE TO PHYSICAL SOCIETY

The Physical Society will hold an exceptionally interesting meeting at 5 o'clock this afternoon in the MacDonald Physics Building.

Through the courtesy of the Bell Telephone Company, a special demonstration will be given of "What goes on inside a telephone exchange."

The manipulation of switch boards and all other intricacies of the exchange will be explained. A moving picture film will also be shown illustrating certain features of telephone operation.

This is an excellent opportunity of obtaining first hand information on an interesting subject and the officers of the club expect a large attendance. The meeting will be an open one and everybody is invited to attend.

Geo: "Why do you call your girl Aspirin?"
Because she affects my heart."

HAMILTON WILL PLAY MONTREAL

Winner of Indoor Baseball Will Play McGill

On Friday evening March 28 on Saturday afternoon March 29, the 95th Highlanders of Hamilton will play the Indoor Baseball champions of Montreal the 85th Highlanders. The winner of this match will play McGill for the championship of Eastern Canada. McCullough of Conn '23, an old McGill man is pitching for the Hamilton team, which is a strong one and has a good reputation. This will be the first time that an Ontario Indoor Baseball Club has visited Montreal, and it is hoped that the inter-provincial games will be a regular institution. McGill has a strong aggregation, the battery, Bronson and Abramovitch being particularly good. McGill's line up will be chosen from the following:

Pitcher—Bronson, Philpott.
1st base—White.
Catcher—Pencecock, Abramovitch.
2nd base—Wather, Goucher.
Shortstop—Lanthier.
3rd base—Chamberlain.
Right field—Milne, Forest.
Centre—Nairn, Kenrick.
